ALDA launching entrepreneurial education in schools

On 14 June, ALDA officially launched the Student Talent Bank project, dedicated to promoting entrepreneurial education in secondary schools among teachers in order to prevent early school leaving, in partnership with six other European organisations (Platon M.E.P.E., European Schoolnet, Inspectoratul Scolar Judetean Iasi, Inqubator Leeuwarden, Eurocrea Merchant, Universidad de Valladolid). The launch event was organised in partnership with the city of Sceaux (France) where it took place. It gathered together local authorities, civil society organisations and general public to exchange knowledge, experience and good practice on entrepreneurship education.

The discussion centred around the different components of entrepreneurial education:

- how initiatives are being implemented both at European level, such as Student Talent Bank, and at local level, such as Sceaux Valley;
- why and how to learn “entrepreneurship” and new soft skills at school;
- online tools and entrepreneurship education to train trainers and introduce civil society in schools.
